Hi Paul,

Sorry for the delay on this. I have been barely able to get to my emails with harvest in full swing.

The Gianni Ferrari mowers are really in their own class. John Deere doesn't have a product that lines up to it. They can supply a front mounted mower with a high lift material collection system but it will not handle the material in the same way as the Gianni Ferrari. The Gianni Ferrari decks cut the material much finer so that in damp conditions the blower assembly that transports the clippings has a much lower risk of being blocked.

The Northam and Toodyay shires both use machines in the same class as the John Deere out front mowers with high lift catchers. A tradition out front mower will be a lot more robust than the cutting system on the Gianni Ferrari's. It really depends where it is going to be used. If the mower will only ever be cutting nicely maintained and manicured lawns the Gianni Ferrari will do an excellent job. But if you will be mowing rough areas you will be looking at higher maintenance costs.

Hope that helps a little.

Hi Lance,

The Works Manager here is trying to get a new front deck mower. He is pretty adamant about what he wants – particularly because it needs to be able to mow and pick up effectively when the grass is wet. But the one he wants is going to take some convincing to council and I am wondering if he hasn't excluded all options. So I wondered if I gave you it's specs whether you can tell me if something comparative comes in green?

It's a Gianni Ferrari

Gianni Ferrari Turbo Two-2WD

- * With fuel capacity increased from 25L to 40L
- * With Two Post ROPS with over head canopy
- * RC150cm Mower-deck
- * 1300 litre grass catcher with audible alarm (increased from 1100 litres)
- * Hydraulic elevator grass catcher emptying to 220cm (increased by 10cm)

Not much of that makes sense to me – hopefully will to you. He did get a quote for a John Deere 1445 – apparently as a mower this was no comparison?

Thanks in anticipation,

Paul
